CRIMINALITY IN THE AREAS OF ECONOMY: THE CONCEPT, STRUCTURAL COMPONENTS AND REFLACTION OF THEIR CONTENT

Relevance of the development of structural components of the concept of "criminality in the area of economy" conditioned by the fact that the bulk of researchers do not disclose its structure, do not indicate at the subject-technological features of committing methods, financial and turnover technologies of veiling and dependent on these technologies - methods, techniques and means of prevention and counteraction. Available researches of criminality in the sphere of economy practically do not define distinctions between the phenomena of reality, the concept of "criminality in the sphere of economy" and one of its components - economic criminality.

Accordingly, the purpose of our research is an objective, etymologically and methodologically balanced formation of terminologically and understanding apparatus designed to most fully and objectively reflect the production and technological, accounting and turnover, management, civil law and other features of the civil turnover of capital, funds, things, rights, actions under the pretext of which economic crimes are committed. The task of our research is to clarify the concept of "criminality in the sphere of economy"; to reflect its features in accordance with the adequacy of the phenomenon of crime in the sphere of economy; to disclose the content of the components of crime in the sphere of economy - economic crimes, common crimes; establishment of mutual influence of economic and conventional crimes with: criminal processes in general, and in the sphere of economy in particular; background crime phenomena; terminology and understanding apparatus developed in legal, economic, technical and other sciences, studying certain spheres of civil turnover, where economic crimes, criminal offences, background crime phenomena, inherent in this or that subject-technological sphere of civil turnover of capitals, means of things, rights, actions.

It is established, that in the sphere of economy economic and conventional crimes are committed that encroach on production, distribution and exchange, capital turnover, civil law, organizational and regulatory, registration and certification, licensing, control and other relations in the spheres of economy, management, social security, civil law activity and possible other structural components of the civil turnover of capital, means, things, rights and actions of the country as a whole.

It reveals the system and structure of the background phenomena of criminality, economic crimes and common crimes inherent in the crime of the economy.

Keywords: economic sphere, crime in the sphere of economy, structural components of crime in the sphere of economy, economic crimes, general criminal offences.
